

THE EMOTION GAME

Author Unknown

This is a very basic game. Two players are given a situation and a task to complete. The game begins by letting the players set up their environment and start the task. Every so often (about every minute or so) the host will stop the action by yelling "Freeze!" The players freeze in their physical position and the host asks the audience for an emotion. The players then resume the game, playing the suggested emotion.